MATERIALS & FINISHES

The Surface.

Berco · 2026 Edition

A finish is not a colour. It is how a surface behaves.

Every surface in this book was chosen for how it wears, not how it photographs. Some resist a wet hand at a sink. Some hold a deep colour without fading. Some wrap a shaped door without a visible edge. What follows is grouped by how each one is made, because that is what decides where it belongs in your home.

Three layers, one decision.

Nearly every door in this book is the same three things: a core, a face, and an edge. The face is what you see and what this book shows. The core decides how the door carries weight and handles moisture. The edge is where cheap cabinetry gives itself away first.

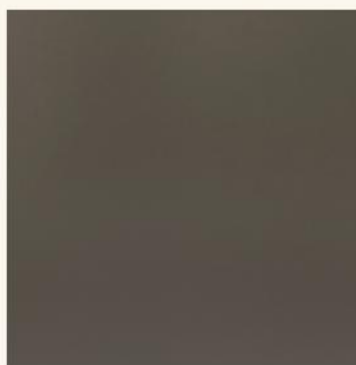

The core

Board or plywood. Carries the load, holds the screw, and decides how the door copes with a wet room.

The face

Melamine, film, lacquer, UV, veneer. What you see, touch and clean — and what this book is about.

The edge

Banded, wrapped or laser-bonded. The first thing to lift on a poor door, and the last on a good one.

Choosing.

See it in your own light

Every screen and every printed page shifts colour. Before anything is ordered we put the physical sample in your room, against your floor and your worktop, and look at it in daylight and at night. The sample is the decision, not this book.

Match the surface to the room

A wet room, a south-facing wall and a low-traffic dressing room are three different problems. We will tell you where a finish is the wrong choice, including when that means talking you out of the one you arrived wanting.

Availability changes

Ranges are added to and retired by the mill. We confirm that a finish is current and orderable at the point of quoting, and we will say so plainly if something you have chosen has been discontinued.

Would you like us to review your space and guide you through the finishes?
